

World Language Education (Grades 7–12)

Master of Arts (M.A.) – Leading to Initial Teaching Certification

Overview

In an effort to build the teaching profession and provide new opportunities for prospective graduate students, the Department of Teaching, Learning and Teacher Education offers a full-time Master of Arts (M.A.) degree program that will lead to initial teaching certification in Elementary Education, English Education, Mathematics Education, Science Education, Secondary Social Sciences Education, Business, Marketing, and Informational Technology Education, or World Language Education. All programs are campus-based programs.

Cohort-based. Graduate students proceed together with peers and world-class faculty creating a community of educators in residential programs.

Graduate Degree and Certification. Upon successful completion, students will graduate with a Master's degree, be fully certified to teach in Nebraska, be eligible for certification in other states, and be employable for the following school year.

Who Should Apply? These programs are designed for qualified graduate students who have earned a bachelor's degree outside the field of education and who can commit to an intensive and accelerated pathway to a career in the teaching profession. These programs are not suited for educators who currently have teaching certification in any subject area or former educators seeking to renew certification. For certification renewal, please click here.

Practicum + Student Teaching. Students will be placed in the Lincoln Public Schools or Omaha Public Schools for teaching internships in the classroom. Collaborative relations with public schools offer students' field experiences in diverse classrooms, purposefully designed to help connect coursework theory and methods to classroom practice. Students will gradually build proficiency in teaching, adding responsibilities and skills throughout a nine-month period and be prepared to assume 14 weeks of full-time student teaching in Spring.

Inquiry. Inquiry infuses all aspects of this graduate program. Students will begin to focus on a curriculum inquiry project that requires the development of classroom research about a problem of practice in teaching and learning, a research project that will form the capstone experience of the program.

Residency. Students will be attending class on the UNL campus and gaining practical experience in K-12 schools in and near the Lincoln/Omaha area. During the academic year, the program schedule will follow the school calendar. Students must live within a reasonable traveling distance to the UNL campus and local cooperating schools. Please note that the funding available for our Master of Arts in Science Teaching Program requires applicants to be US citizens.

Master of Arts leading to Initial Certification in World Language Education

In an effort to build world language education capacity and provide new opportunities for prospective graduate students, the Department of Teaching, Learning and Teacher Education is offering a full-time, M.A. degree leading to Initial Teaching Certification in World Language Teaching and English Language Learning (ELL). Dr. Ali Moeller is the Edith S. Greer Professor of World Language Education. She has taught German at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and spent 11 years teaching German in middle and high school, where she also served as department chair. She teaches undergraduate and graduate language methods classes in World Language Teaching and in Second Language Acquisition. She provides professional development seminars and institutes for world language teachers in summers. Her professional interests include technology-enhanced language learning, testing and assessment, intercultural communicative competence, research methodology, and world language teacher education.

Dr. Theresa Catalano, Associate Professor, received her Ph.D. in Second Language Acquisition and Teaching from the University of Arizona. She has taught ESL for 4 years at the K-6 level, and 2 years (Spanish) at the middle school level. She has also taught ESL or Italian at the adult education, community college, and university levels for over 15 years, including a year teaching English as a Foreign Language in Ankara, Turkey. Dr. Catalano teaches courses related to foreign and second language methodology, linguistics, and intercultural communication. Her research interests include critical linguistics, social justice language education and the role of the arts in (language) education.

Dr. Jenelle Reeves, Professor of Teaching, Learning and Teacher Education, has taught English as an international language in the U.S., Japan, and Korea. At UNL, Dr. Reeves teaches courses in the ELL (English language learner) endorsement pathway, including Second Language Acquisition, English as a Second Language (ESL) Methods, and Teaching ELLs in Content Areas. Her research focuses on teacher thinking, development and identity in multilingual/multicultural classrooms. Dr. Reeves also leads study abroad trips to South Korea and the Netherlands.

Application Essay and Letters of Recommendation

The Graduate Admissions Committee will review for the following evidence:

- Academic strengths and readiness to do graduate study
- Professional and academic goals and alignment with the Department goals

In addition to the minimum requirements listed above, transcripts and resumé, the Graduate Admissions Committee closely examines your letters of recommendation and your application essay.

Application Essay. The Graduate Admissions Committee looks closely at the applicant's goals in the application essay for further evidence of your meeting the admissions criteria. A well-written essay is crucial to admissions decisions. This application essay is a concise statement in which you address clearly why you want to pursue this graduate program at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. In this essay you should address clearly:

1. Your academic and/or professional goals and how this graduate program will enable you to meet these goals.
2. Your academic strengths, with specific attention to your background in higher education and how this qualifies you for graduate study at a major university.
3. Any professional experience, knowledge, and skills you possess and how these further qualify you for graduate study at a major university. This statement should be between 700-1000 words.

*Letters of Recommendation. The application requires three letters of recommendation. The Graduate Admissions Committee considers letters an important part of any application. You should solicit letters that directly address your readiness and qualification to do graduate study in Teaching, Learning and Teacher Education. Letters should come from those who are familiar with your academic and professional work, such as former professors, employers or administrators. Do not include letters from friends, family members, or your own high school teachers. Each of these will be disregarded in the review and detract from your application.

The Nebraska Department of Education and Nebraska school districts require that College of Education and Human Sciences students who plan to pursue a degree in an education-related field, athletic training majors, and any other UNL students who enroll in CEHS courses that involve practicum experiences in the schools are required to undergo a formal screening process related to criminal history through One Source. Consequently, a background check is a pre-requisite for application to our programs.

The Nebraska Department of Education Competency Requirement. It is now required for admission that you take the Praxis® Core Academic Skills for Educators (Core), which replaces the Pre-Professional Skills Test or CORE. This is a minimal knowledge competency examination that the Nebraska State Department of Education requires of all applicants for admission to any teacher education program. Students need documentation of proficiency in the 3 areas of reading, writing and mathematics. Successful completion of the Core tests meets this requirement. You must successfully pass this test before the application deadline. Scores must be sent directly from ETS to UNL (institutional code 6877) and may take up to 6 weeks to be reported. It is preferable that you take the test 4-6 weeks before the application deadline so that your official scores can be included in your application.

You are allowed to re-take the CORE once within any calendar month. Please plan accordingly to allow adequate time.

Only completed application files will be considered for admission. It is the applicant's responsibility to be certain that all materials are submitted and received prior to the deadline dates.
